A NOBLE WORK.

A resume of the results already accomplished by The Evening World's staff of obvisions, who are enabled to push the humay a work among the dwellers in the tenements by the Sick Babies' Fund, is given in another column to-day. What a glorious record it is! What a touching story it tells of suffering alleviated, little lives saved, sad hearts lightened and cheerless homes illumined by rays of hope!

With what assiduity the skilful members of ti is saff have performed their duties is best thown by the following record: Houses visited 1 234 - families visited, 8 332 - number of sick found, 552; prescriptions, 523, but these figures, telling of wonderful schavements as they do, do not and cannot rehievements as they do, do not and cannot convey information of the invaluable services | To the Editor of The Evening Sould convey information of the invaluable services | Will you decide the following: At a game which may be greater by far in preventing disease than any amount of drugs administered to cure ailments already contracted.

Truly this is a charity appealing to the tenderest impulses of all. Those who have contributed to the work already accomplished may well be proud of their share in the humanitarian enterprise. But more money is needed. The work is but just begun. Now that the public is made aware of the good done by the Fund we are confident that the contributions will be greatly accelerated.

A NOVEL GOVERNMENT PUBLICATION.

Prof. John P. Sousa, leader of the Marine Band at Washington, has made a collection of National airs of all the countries on earth, and a book containing them is soon to be published. By what music publishing house is the book to be issued? None. It is to be done by the authority of the Navy Depart

Why? Well, "that's one thing that nobody knows." To what use the navy can put these airs is not apparent. There is no special reason why the Government should become Prof. Sousa's publisher. If this collection is valuable, there are plenty of private concerns that would be only too glad to publish the work.

The next thing to be published by the Government will probably be a choice collection of " Favorite Gospel Hymns," prepared by the authority of the Post-Office Department, PHILIPSEN'S ESCAPE.

The discharge of CHARLES PHILIPSEN from bail, which practically ends the prosecution in that case, is calculated to pique the curiosity of those who are cognizant of the facts in the case. PHILIPSEN was indicted several months ago for perjury in the West Washington Market investigation. Now, without any attempt to bring him to trial, he is discharged. This is a peculiar proceeding.

The reason assigned by District-Attorney Gory for the case not having been prepared fitting pair of trowsers. was remarkable. He claimed that such prepared Farmer Stubbledell from Waylon's Jones to a Farmer Stubbledell from Waylon's Jones to a Farmer Stubbledell from Waylon's Jones outside the District-Attorney's office. subsides of the privilege of polluting the Croton water with their dead bodies. The frequency with which cornses are fished out of the reservoir from which is obtained the city's supply of drinking water, is a matter of grave public concern. Too great vigilance cannot be exercised in guarding the purity of the water used for domestic purposes.

The building of a fence of such height as will preclude the possibility of its being More Than Five Hundred Sick Babies scaled by would be suicides, may drive those poor unfortunates to seek watery graves where the aqueous element is not so pure but it will be decidedly to the advantage of those who have no desire to die. It is said that the old saw-filers life was marred by an unhappy marriage years ago and that his wife ran away with his best friend, a man who worked in the same shop with him in New London, Conn.

BOLD COUNTERFEITERS CAPTURED.

One of Them Shoots a Secret-Service Officer -821,000 in Spurious Bills.

DAYTON, O., July 19. An important capture was made here to-day by United States Secret-Service detectives and $21,000 counterfeit money secured. Detectives have for several months past been watching the road-house of Nelson Driggs on National avenue, near the Soldiers' Home, and this afternoon made a raid upon it. Driggs and his wife were arrested and charged with counterfeiting.

Driggs has been known for years as an expert counterfeiter and a member of one of the strongest bands of "concymen" in the country. About twenty years ago he was captured in Illinois, was convicted and served fourteen years in Joliet prison for counterfeiting. Since his release he has again been associating with an expert hand of counterfeiters who had headquarters in Indiana and at Cincinnati. The case was worked up by a Secret Service detective who personated a doctor from Hartford, Conn. and professed to be anxious to secure a quantity of counterfeit money. Driggs got it for him, the bargain heing that the doctor was to pay $7,000 for the $21,000 counterfeit.

In making the vapture, Detective S. A. Donello, of Virginia, was fired upon by a desperate character named Guyon, who is one of the counterfeiting gaing. The ball passed through the officer's car, under the scalp and around to the back of the head. The wound is serious, but not dangerous. The counterfeit bills were of the issue bearing Daniel Webster's portrait and all $10 in denomination. About twenty years ago he was captured in Illi-tion, advice and kindness, the fruitage of of club No. 2 two to one or better. At the end of the ninth inning the score was 0 to 0. In the article headed "Kemmier's Innings," you spoke of the deadly force of the electric fluid. Twenty or thirty years ago it was supposed that electricity was a fluid, but of late years scientists have proved that electricity is not a fluid, but a powerful incomprehensible element.

With Dr. Foster's kind assistance the little slips, shuts and socks have been made into separate piles, and to-day I shall squeeze about forty outfits into a handbag and distribute them along the route of the phy-

One father brought a parcel of almost new garments and when he said they "ones be and he only shook his head when the doctor The Sugar Trust Preparing to Further Saladin Cock's Purcuers Lare Not Apasked his name and turn d away in tears. Many kind-hearted mothers, dressed in black, came to the door with small tundles for the poor tenement children, and nearly every child that delivered garments had a special baby they wished them to go to, and charged the good doctor to make no mistake at out it. The little Russian babe, born with a broken arm, has legions of friends and ever so many complimentaries awaiting her acceptance. There are worsted boots, tiny woollen shirts, several snowy slips with lace about the neck and wrists, a brand-new nursing bottle, a cake of imported soap and a box of French sachet powder to be used after her bath. Isn't that just splendid?

"A Fond Mother" sent a bundle of the daintiest muslins and flannels imaginable. In a note she said one child died two years 'ago and the last was laid away in Greenwood only a month ago. There was a mother's blessing in the note, and a woman's tears blotted many of the words.

the near future by a great many people. Certain it is that the Trust has become alarmed at the warfare against it, and that it is going to make a hard fight to sustain the present price and force it further up is

Before the first advance in sugar last Winter the storage of large quantities of the refined article in warehouses was a thing unheard of. The price then was about seven cents a pound, against 10 cents, the price now demanded. At that time the Trust had been storing large quantities of sugar in the refinery buildings in Williamsburg that were not then in

When the manager of a Trust firm was mestioned about their action he promptly denied that they were doing anything of the kind, and insisted that if any refined sugar S. R., C. P., Baby Roy, M. S. There is little doubt but that at the present time there are at least 200,000 barrels of refined sugar in the storage warehouses between Fulton and Wall street ferries. And after this territory was covered the

And after this territory was covered the Trust took advantage of all the other opportunities to increase their holdings. They have been utilizing the stores north of the Atlantic Basin, and over 40,000 barrels of sugar are stored in one warehouse alone.

There are always a number of lighters drawn up to the wharves discharging their cargoes, and, it is said, that there are over 100,000 barrels of sugar in the basin at the present time, making a total of 300,000 barrels altopether.

In addition to the vast amount now on hand the Trust is rushing matters, and it is said that before long the stock may not fall short of a half million barrels.

The value of this immense quantity of sugar is something enormous, and from the appearance of things it will be worth more yet, unless the people fight the Trust harder than ever.

There is scarcely any reason to doubt that the Trust is preparing another squeeze, and the Trust is preparing another squeeze, and that there will be another advance in the price of sugar.

The excuse for the advance will be the alleged short supply. Many poor workmen have reason to remember the Trust's action last Winter.

They ran the refineries on full time, wiled up mountains of the saccharine substance, and when the warchouses were full to overflowing the refineries were shut down and hundreds were thrown out of work. Then prices were put up, and in a few weeks the bogus cry was heard that the supply was short.

made, however, that the State will lose $117,000 annually instead of gaining that much by the transaction, owing to a peculiar provision of the act authorizing the refunding of the loan.

It was the purpose of the Legislature to reduce the interest just one-half, in addition to which the counties would loan the fund on real seater security at 6 per cent, thus giving the farmers the advantage of borrowing home money at a low rate. It is now found that the law requires that the counties shail pay 6 per cent, for all of the funds apportioned to them, which, with the 3 per cent, paid by the State, really makes the school fund interest 9 per cent, instead of 6, the amount paid heretofore. State Auditor Carr says that there is no remedy for the matter until the meeting of the Legislature in 1891.

A Murderer Who Must Be Starved Out or Caught Napping.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.) PROVIDENCE. R. I., July 19.- The police of looking for a crazy murderer, and he is gunresident of Diamond Hill, in Cumberland, who for a long time has been insane, but believed to be harmless. Cook was a member of one of the first regiments to leave this State in defense of the Union, and during the excitement of the battle of Fredericksburg had his mind turned. There was hereditary insanity in the blood, and this event developed the latent trait.

A year and a half ago he was committed to the State Insane Asylum, but was discharged in less than two months as a person who was perfectly harmless. Subsequently he became quite excitable, and as he had been one of the leading hunters of the State and a fine shot, he was greatly feared, especially as he made frequent threats to kill those who gave him funcied offense. Even the school children were made to feel by him that their lives were in jeopardy. Two weeks ago he had so many bad spells that his guardian had to lives were in jeopardy. Two weeks ago he had so many bad spells that his guardian had to take him before the local justice and ask for his restraint in the State institution. There was picity of evidence to support the charge, but, as the family assert to-day, there was a political feeling adverse to Courad Cook, Salidin's brother, who had surgested the inearceration, and who had left the Republican party for the Democratic organization.

At any rate, the chomies of Courad swore to the samity of Salidin, and he was liberated. Courad, as the administrator of his father's estate, had sold off everything but the standing grass in the lot opposite the eld homestead, Dennis Ryan, a re-pectable farmer, being the purchaser. Wednesday mornine Ryan went to the Cook farm, with his help, to mow the grass, and should after he began that work there was a guishot bear and liyan's men were northed to see him fall mortally wounded. Knowing that the shot from an ambush had been fired by the crazy man they hastily nicked up the injured man and fled from the place, carrying liyan to his home, where he died at +250 next morning. The police at once started to arrest the assassin, but they were deterred, as they knew that he was armed with a shotgun and a rife, both loaded. All day they spoit in laying for him, but did not succeed in getting him, and they ne more date to go to bis house than here would try to walk on the water. The Cook homestead is situated in the course of a deep glein and the road leading to the house, where the limited house there are a hundred place within a circle of 100 yards where he could secrete himself and hold the fort against his pursiers. This the officers as well as the townspeeple know, and they are a fruid to venture on the premises and equally afraid that the lumatic will come upon the neighboring farms or roads and shoot at randord. The only way to get Cook will be to starve him out or catch him applies.
